A Company Organizing With a Capital of $5,000,000 to Locate Here.

STREET ROAD WORKS.

LOOKING FOR A DESIRABLE SITE.

They Will Make the Underground Plan of Electric Apparatus.

MR. LOVE GIVES SOME OF THE DETAILS

Mr. C. H. Love, of Phitadelphia, a celebrated inventor and electrician, is in Pittsburg organizing a company with a capital | that it was conducted in a style and spirit stock of $5,000,000. When all arrangements have been completed it is the intention of the company to build a large works in Pitts- and never kept any account of their transburg to construct the appliances necessary actions with each other. They had no disfor a new system of electric railroads. Some | agreements, and when family matters came of the most prominent men in the city are interested in the scheme, and a number of atting each other without memoranda. distinguished electricians notified Mr. Love of their willingness to take up the idea and push it to the front. Such men as George Vestinghouse and George Rice, chief engineer of the Citizens' Traction road, are convinced of the feasibility of the project, and will enter the company. Mr Rice, in a report he made, points out the advantages of the underground system of electricity for use on street railways as compared with other systems now in vogue, where cars are propelled by the overhead electric cur-

Mr. Love's plan is to run cars by the underground system of electricity, and during these days of clamor for placing wires beneath the turf it can meet with no objection. The Pittsburg company is well under way, and is composed of moneyed men. Mr. Love himself has some capital which is not to be specied at. The company is negotiating for a site, but as the property has not yet been obtained, though he told the reporter where it was located, Mr. Love does not want this fact to be known until the deal is closed. The company has no desire to pay double

LOCAL BOADS INTERESTED. Mr. Love is now negotiating with two Pittsburg horse car lines who contemplate chang-ing their motive power to electricity. No definite contract has yet been made between them, but Mr. Love thinks that some conclusion will be reached in a few days.

Mr. Love, in an interview with a Dis-PATCH reporter yesterday, said: "We have in our system a thorough insulation in the eeiling of the conduit. It is so completely encased that neither water, mud or filth can reach the wires, which is the greatest diffi-culty that hitherto has been experienced in the overhead system. The contact carriers are held by pull springs, controlled by a nd lever, so under any circumstances we have perfect connection with the line conductors. There are but two essential things in an electrical railway-insulation and contact with the lever.

"Where it is an impossible thing to get a conduit cut through a bridge; by one movement of the lever the contact carrier is lifted out of the conduit, and an overhead trolley, which is in reach of the motor man, is attached to the lever, making the necessary electric connection. On the other side of the bridge the carrier is dropped into the conduit and makes the contact again.

PARTS OF THE MECHANISM. "We place rubber jaws near the ceiling of the conduit, then a block of glass with an opening in it is slipped into the jaws, then a tongue fastened to a line conductor passes through the opening of the glass block and a wedge is dropped in to hold it in its place. The tongue is surrounded by glass, having no connection with the conduit or anything but the line conductor. A flange is carried down from the lid of the conduit, protecting it from the weather or mud. The conduit is deep enough to keep with pull springs forms a perfect cushion on the under side of the line conductor. - These springs allow for any irregularity of the road. The lever is somewhat similar to that used for the cable grip, but instead of gripping the wire, there is a rolling contact. The lever can be made so as to cut the current or lift the contact carrier out of the conduit, and is held suspended underneath the car. There is also an unbroken metallic home-line conductor. To this one a tongue is attached, which is slipped into an iron bracket and there secured by a wedge, making electric connection with the iron con-The line relieves the electric motor of any backward resistance, giving a large outlet for the electricity after leaving the motor. It is not necessary to have a motor more than 15-horse power strong to climb the steepest bill in Pittsburg. The cost of running a road such as described is about $2 50 a car per day, and it costs $20,000 a

A Timely Suggestion.

The senior proprietor of this paper has been subject to frequent colds for some year; which were sure to lay him up if not doctored at once. He finds that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is reliable. It opens the secretions, relieves the lungs, and restores the system to a healthy condition. If treely used, as soon as the cold has been contracted, and before it has become settled in the system, it greatly lessens the attack, and often cures in a single day what would otherwise have been a severe cold.—Northwestern Hotel Reporter, Des Moines, Ia. ON IMPROPER ADVERTISING.

Merchants Condemn the Use of Questionable Business Methods.

There has been considerable discussion about the action of the W. C. T. U. on Tuesday in adopting a resolution denouncing the display of obscene pictures as a method of advertising. Several proprietors of cigar stores were seen yesterday, and from what they said regarding the matter there is a general feeling prevailing against the use of these cards and pictures by cigar dealers Charles C. Baer said he never allowed one to be displayed in his store. There is a great demand for picture cards by children and he sometimes keeps instructive cards for them. J. K. Durr also denounced the use of them, saying that goods ought to advertise them-selves. Another dealer said the cards had proven such a success as an advertising medium that they were not likely to ever be
